

Do I need a license to install solar panels?

An electrical license is an absolute requirement. An installer with the North American Board of Certified Energy Practitioners (NABCEP) Certification is also a major plus (and a requirement to be on Solar.com's platform). When you search for local installers, make sure to ask if they are NABCEP certified or check their website for the logo.

Where can I find a certified solar installer?

Manufacturer-Specific Installer Networks: Major solar equipment manufacturers frequently have searchable databases of certified installers on their websites. These installers receive specific training on that manufacturer's products, which can be an advantage if a homeowner prefers a particular type of equipment. EcoFlow is a shining example here.

How do I find a reliable solar installer?

Personal Referrals: One of the most reliable methods is to ask friends, family, and neighbors who have installed solar for their recommendations. Their firsthand accounts of the experience offer valuable, unfiltered information about an installer's professionalism and quality of work.

How do I find a local solar installer?

A diligent search for local solar installers is the foundational step. Homeowners who compare multiple quotes can achieve significant savings, often in the thousands of dollars. A successful search uses multiple channels to create a list of potential installers. This approach provides a balanced view of the options available in a specific area.
